

TEAM WORK

SARAH ZANDER, BRIAN RYCKMAN, MITCHEL ANDRE, DAKOTA HINSON AND MATTHEW HOFFMAN

YUKONER AT WORK Sarah Zander has worked at Victoria Gold's Eagle Gold Mine since last November as an Administrative Assistant for the Site Services Department. One of the duties within her role includes scheduling the site crew.

"I really enjoy the culture of teamwork and community here at the Eagle Gold Mine," says Sarah. "Participating in a project with colleagues that share similar goals and values is very meaningful and my background in exploration and administration have helped make my role at the mine a perfect fit for me."

Training Supervisor Brian Ryckman is responsible for mine equipment training and employee orientations at site. A member of the Victoria Gold team since June 2019, he says he most enjoys "the person-to-person interaction at site as a mentor to new team members paired with the friendly people I work with."

Born and raised in the Yukon, Mitchel Andre is a second year Carpenter's Apprentice who like Sarah, has worked for Victoria at the mine since November 2020. "I really like working with new people and developing new skills," says Mitchel.

Haul Truck Operator Dakota Hinson is motivated by team work. He too is one of the approximately 50 per cent of Eagle Gold Mine's employees who are Yukoners. "Being that I've lived here my entire life, I love how beautiful the territory is, and the scenery and nature at site," says Dakota. "I really like driving through site as part of my job moving ore and observing the other equipment and my colleagues at work."

Matthew Hoffman is a Reliability Engineer-in-Training. A new team within the site's Maintenance Department, in his role he helps with the continuous improvement of Eagle Gold Mine's fixed and mobile assets. "The best part of my job is that throughout my work day, I have plenty of opportunities to get out in the field and get some hands-on experience," says Matthew. "The members of the maintenance team have been very welcoming and willing to pass on their knowledge and experience."
