VICTORIA GOLD IS VERY PROUD OF ITS COMMITTED TEAM AT THE EAGLE GOLD MINE AND OF THE DIVERSE EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES THE MINE PROVIDES.

Drill and Blast Engineer-in-Training (EIT) Lea Johnston started working with Victoria at the mine in the Technical Services Department one year ago. Her role involves designing drill patterns and initiation sequences and assisting with drill scheduling. "The Eagle Gold Mine has varying geology and rock-hardness types so designing the explosive patterns keeps me very engaged," says Lea. "I enjoy this challenge and always look to optimize our production. Victoria's engineering and planning team is also really fun to work with, which makes my job very special."

John Hosie started working at the mine in March. A Paramedic/Safety Technician for more than 40 years, he provides emergent and regular routine medical care and chronic disease management to employees and contractors on site.

"I really enjoy interacting with everyone, hearing their stories and seeing how they all 'fit' into the operations of the Eagle Gold Mine," says John. "And of course, I love medicine."

Executive Assistant Fiona Lazzarotto supports Victoria's Chief Operating Officer (COO) Mark Ayranto with administration and a variety of projects. In her role, she also provides support for other Victoria Gold department's such as Site Operations, Permitting, Community and Finance.

"Victoria has established a great team and I really enjoy working with all the different departments and the opportunity to work at the mine," says Fiona. "I am constantly learning new things, which keeps me on my toes and makes every day interesting."

Yukoner and Carcross/Tagish First Nation citizen Ryley Johnson is an Apprentice Millwright in the mine's Fixed Maintenance Department. In his role, he helps to ensure all the equipment, including the mine's crushers, conveyors, pumps and feeders, are maintained to keep the operations running smoothly.

"I really appreciate always working on something new," says Ryley. "As a born and raised Yukoner, I love the outdoors and working close to home gives me lots of opportunities to enjoy it."

Equipment Operator Sarah Hohner has also been with Victoria at the Eagle Gold Mine for one year. She operates a bulldozer, grader, backhoe, loader and haul truck on site and is also a member of the mine rescue team.

"I love being able to do something a little bit different every day in my position," says Sarah. "And enjoy the beautiful scenery at site while I do it."
